BRAVES IMPROVE IN THE BETTING

NEW YORK FANS BOW TO BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—New York is simply crazy about the Braves, just as crazy as it was formerly about the champion Giants. Twenty thousand New Yorkers and a few hundred Bostonians paraded to the Polo Grounds yesterday and gave the new champs the greatest reception ever a visiting team has received in these parts, according to the New York experts.

New York, too, is much impressed with the sensational and betting on the World's Series is getting very brisk. A week ago, we are told, the local odds were two to one, but this morning six to five, or at the outside six to four was the general figure.

As for the Braves, they have now started in to perfect their team work. They are playing inside ball in the field and at the bat. They swept the Giants off their feet in the first game yesterday and then turned around and did it right over again in the second, only to have the Beans spilled by a couple of rookie pitchers.

BRAVES READY FOR BIG GAMES.

Stallings might have put in one of his stars and added another ball game to the list, but he figures that his youngsters will have to have their baptism of fire and they might as well get it now, when a loss or a win one way or the other makes no difference.

Naturally there was some relaxation on the part of the players of the Guests Flee Hotel Blaze Scantily Clad

Fifty-two guests at the Hotel Atlantic, Bowdoin square, fled—scantily clad—through smoke-filled hallways, to the street, early today when fire broke out in an ell on the ground floor, used as a kitchen, in the rear of the saloon and restaurant of Louis Devencenzi.

The fire was discovered by employes of the hotel. They told W. R. Torrence, night clerk, who, after giving the alarm, ran from room to room awakening the guests. The flames were soon under control and the guests were able to return for their belongings.

The fire started from a defective chimney and caused $1,000 damage. The building is six stories high, the five upper stories being used as a hotel.

ARRAIGN 4 IN MAINE CASE

Lynn Athlete Slain

DUNN WAS VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Judge Luminus of the Lynn Court today found that Jeremiah J. Dunn, the Lynn athlete, whose body was found in Lampere's Mill Pond, on September 1, and who had been thought a suicide, was slain.

"Dunn came to his death," the judge found, "by a blow administered by some person unknown."

Dunn, who was a crack swimmer and expert boxer, was last seen alive on the night of August 23. His body was found about ten feet from shore, in Lampere's Mill Pond, September 1. Dunn's hat and coat were missing. The coat was found floating on the surface of the mill pond the next day.

Friends of Dunn and members of his family claimed that it was impossible for the body of Dunn to get into the mill pond unless it had been thrown there.

The inquest discloses the fact that Dunn was unconscious when his body entered the water. Judge Luminus stated in his report that there is no evidence to justify proceedings against any known person.

Dunn was with four companions on the night that he was last seen. He was in an altercation with his companions while all were gathered at the Lynn boulevard. Patrolmen Bance and Johnson ordered them to go home. The companions of Dunn did so. Dunn walked away. Patrolman Bance found the body four days later.

No Hard Times in Demand for World Series Tickets

If you think the people of Boston are hard up, go and see Herman Nickerson, secretary of the Boston National baseball club, at Fenway Park.

Mr. Nickerson says that he never heard of such an avalanche of prosperity in history—if the ability and the desire of people to spend their money is an indication.

Mr. Nickerson has received applications for more than 50,000 world's series tickets for three games in Boston. As the prices are from $1 to $5 per game, the applications amount to close to $500,000—in other words, the people of Boston are eager to spend a half million dollars to see three baseball games.

And the applications are still coming.

Are these hard times?

Not on your life.

Chandler Takes Up New Chamber Work

William H. Chandler, the new manager of the transportation department of the Chamber of Commerce, began his duties today at the Chamber. Mr. Chandler said: "It is too early for me to outline what I will attempt to do with this department. I have not met with the committee on transportation since my appointment and anything that I would say at present would be premature."

AUSTRIA SENDS ITALY APOLOGY FOR MINE LAYING

The German war fleet, which was supposed to be in hiding among the defences of the Kiel Canal, appears to be active in the Baltic and menacing the Russian coast, according to today's dispatches from Petrograd. The Russian Admiralty announces that a fleet of forty German ships on September 24 appeared off Windau, but was repelled by the Russian forts. On the following day two cruisers returned and opened fire, killing a number of soldiers, but were again driven off.

The immediate danger of Italy's entrance into the war is apparently averted by Austria's apology, officially announced at Rome, for the presence of mines near the Italian coast in the Adriatic. Austria expresses its regrets for the sinking of Fifth Arrest Predicted as Maine Suspects Are Arraigned.

HOULTON, Me., Oct. 1.—While county officials and volunteers are searching along the Fort Fairfield road today for the grave or body of seventeen-year-old Mildred Sullivan, whom all those investigating the strange case of "the prettiest girl in Aroostook County" now are certain is dead, her sweetheart, Ambrose Briggs, will appear in court here to confront the four persons who are to be arraigned in connection with the mystery.

When Dr. Lionel S. Dudley, who was arrested in Boston, is arraigned before Judge Charles Carroll in the Municipal Court, the charge of manslaughter will be added to that of malpractice. Alice and Etta Pelletier of Presque Isle, Me., and Kate Michaud of Fort Kent, Me., also brought here from Boston, will be accused as accessories.

Ransford W. Shaw, one of the ablest lawyers in Maine, will represent Dr. Dudley.

Deputy sheriffs, with the assistance of a dozen volunteers, dug over every inch in the cellars of the building where Dr. Dudley's office is located and in the home of the Pelletier girls, as the authorities are making a desperate effort to locate the body of the school girl in order to complete their allegations.

A fifth arrest is expected today in the mystery.

Public interest is at fever heat. Everybody, especially every parent, is eager to learn what became of

TRACE AUTO CLEW IN HUNT FOR GIRL'S BODY

Millie's body. Already Presque Isle streams and Squapan lake have been dragged and hunting parties are raking the landscape for miles.

Winfield Southard, a young business man of this town, today declared he saw Dr. Dudley drive an automobile that carried Mildred Sullivan to Mrs. Southard's lodging house, deathly sick, late on the night of Thursday, September 3, and that Miss Katherine O. Michaud was in the car. This is the night mentioned in the case.

Winfield Southard's statement is corroborated by testimony of his mother, Mrs. E. Augustus Southard, in whose house not far from the village Millie Sullivan remained four days, and by Frank Matthew, who was returning from a night dance with Winfield Southard.

Whether Millie Sullivan died at some house in the village, or en route to a place of concealment, is what the county authorities are bending every energy to determine.

TRACE AUTO CLEW.

The authorities say they are satisfied Dr. Dudley's automobile played a prominent part in the tragedy. Winfield Southard's story quickly followed that of Dr. Dudley's housekeeper, who said that she was away with his medicine all night on a Friday and the report of another witness who claimed he saw Dr. Dudley overhauling his runabout the following Saturday morning.

William Dardy, who drives a baggage truck, said he saw Dr. Dudley board the Boston train, which left here on the morning of Saturday, September 4, and that he carried a grip and shipped a trunk on the train.

"None of the accused young women went with him," added Dudley. "I was at every train every day and didn't see Mildred Sullivan, who I know, leave with Miss Michaud."

"Nor did either of the Pelletier sisters go from the Presque Isle station. My theory is that they went from here by automobile and took a train at the junction six miles below or some station beyond."

Winfield Southard said he saluted Dudley with the words "Hello Doc," as Dudley's automobile drew up in front of his (Southard's) mother's house that Tuesday night, but that Dudley declined to reply.

The county authorities are satisfied now that Millie Sullivan went to Presque Isle to undergo treatment and that the journey was arranged by Ambrose Briggs, Millie's sweetheart, by telephone. Briggs, who is thirty and employed on the Bangor & Aroostook, is said to have furnished the State with much evidence.

MRS. SOUTHARD'S STORY.

The AMERICAN published today an interview with Mrs. E. A. Southard about little Millie Sullivan's hours of suffering, of the five visits made by Dr. Alexander Graves, another village physician, who refused to take a hand in the case when summoned by some unknown by telephone, and of the invalid's departure in a depot carriage to the home of the Pelletier sisters, a mile away, where she was last seen alive.

Mrs. Southard says:

"On the afternoon of Tuesday, September 1, Miss Michaud and Mildred Sullivan came to my house and asked for a room. Later that day Ambrose Briggs and his chum, named Davis, called and wanted a room also. I assigned the girls to an upper front room and set up a bed in the parlor for the young men.

"Briggs paid me for the rooms. He seemed to be the Millie Sullivan girl's beau and Davis was attentive to Miss Michaud. That night I slept in a hammock on the front porch. I must have fallen asleep when I was awakened by the return of my son, Teddy.

"I noticed that the light was still on in the parlor and that the two young men were sitting close to each other on the bed engaged in earnest conversation. I could see plainly from the darkened porch, because their shade was lifted a trifle.

"On Wednesday the young men went to work, or said they were going. Briggs telephoned later and asked me if the girls were awake. I told him they were not and he remarked: 'Well, let them sleep as long as they wish.'

"Miss Michaud went away and remained most of the day, leaving Mildred alone. I went to the girl's room and spoke to her in the course of the day. She didn't tell me anything about herself other than that she lived in Houlton. I referred to a woman friend who lives there and she said her mother was a close neighbor of the woman I mentioned.

"This made me take more interest in the child. For she was only a child, after all, poor thing. She was as sweet and pretty as could be and refined. My heart goes out to her and her young mother.

"I thought Mildred might like to read so I gave her a book and she read it almost all that day. She turned down open part in the room exactly as she left it.

"Wednesday evening Miss Michaud returned. Thursday morning the girls strolled in the field back of the house down to Penobscot river. They kept looking across as if they expected somebody. Later they came into the house.

RETURNED IN AUTO.

"That afternoon Briggs and Dudley called and saw Mildred sitting in Ambrose Briggs' lap. The fellows went away. I recall that the next day they came. Briggs had $50, which S. L. Black had paid to him as wages. The girls went to the village late Thursday afternoon. About 11 o'clock Thursday night they came back in an automobile.

"Miss Michaud got out first and I distinctly heard her say, after looking in, 'Everything is all right.' Then the man who drove the car got out and carried Millie Sullivan upstairs. I did not hear him speak at all nor did I see who it was.

"My son Winfield came home late from the dance with Frank Matthew. Winfield said they saw the auto stop at our door. My son said he knew the car at once, and that he said, 'Hello Doc,' but that the doctor didn't answer. He simply hung his head. Matthew knew the car and driver also.

"Millie Sullivan was a terribly sick girl, that night and next day. I heard her moan. Miss Michaud asked anxiously for a pitcher of water as soon as they got the girl into the room and my son Winfield got it for her, but did not look in.

"That night Dr. Graves came over from the village. He said somebody telephoned him to come, but that he did not know who sent the order. He made a hurried survey of the case and promptly refused to lend a hand to it. Next day, Friday, he called again, saying that he wished to notify the authorities.

"I went to the fair. My daughter-in-law told me when I returned that Miss Michaud and Miss Sullivan went away in the public carriage at 11 o'clock. The carriage took them to the home of Alice Pelletier. Miss Michaud took my son's raincoat off the hallway rack to cover Millie in the carriage.

HAD SEVERAL $10 BILLS.

"Later she came back and paid for an umbrella she lost and returned the raincoat. She also paid for the lodgings up to Friday. She had a number of ten dollar bills."

The public carriage that carried Mildred Sullivan and Miss Michaud away from the Southard home was driven by Dennis Markle, who said:

"I called for the girls and drove them to the Pelletier house, where I left them shortly before noon. That is all I know about it. One of the girls looked pretty sick, I thought."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pelletier, parents of Alice and Etta Pelletier, admit that Mildred Sullivan was at their house Friday afternoon, but they don't know just when she was taken from there.

Dr. Dudley is emphatic in his claim that the girl was operated on by another local doctor, and that when she visited his office he saw the gravity of the case at once and declined to treat her. He claims she was in his office but a few minutes.

It is claimed Dr. Dudley was seen in Presque Isle some days after his first alleged trip to Boston and that he left for Boston a second time a week later.

TELLS OF AUTO.

Dr. Dudley will be bailed. Colby classmates are rallying to his defence. His brother-in-law will furnish his bonds.

The theory of the authorities that the body of Mildred Sullivan was carried to some hiding place in an auto has been strengthened by the statement of Mrs. Clementine Martin.

Mrs. Martin, who shares a two-family house with the Pelletiers, declares that at midnight of the day the girl was last seen a man visited the Pelletier home in an auto. She says he drove to a shed-like ell in the rear of the Pelletier side of the structure, and, after a brief stay, chugged away at a fast rate of speed along the Fort Fairfield road.

SCHOOL GIRLS 'HALF DRESSED,' CLOSE SCHOOL

Three thousand pupils of the Lynn schools are enjoying a holiday that will probably last through the week because Superintendent Frank J. Peaslee "doesn't want to subject half-dressed girls to taking severe colds."

Incidentally, some of the school boilers are out of commission and the school rooms are as Arctic as the temperament of the school girls at the criticism of their attire is heated.

The school girls say they just have to be stylish, and that the city heating apparatus will have to speed up to keep pace with Dame Fashion.

On the other hand, here is Superintendent Peaslee's opinion:

If high school girls would dress as they should and not come to school half-dressed it would not be necessary for us to close the English High building on account of the cold weather. As they dress now, I think that requiring them to remain in school would be conducive to severe colds.

The girls at the English High and Breed Grammar schools in Lynn wear the latest fashions—wherever they come from in these warlike days.

LOW NECKS AND LOW SHOES.

They are given to the new basque effects, low shoes, silk stockings, low necked waists, going bare-headed and being in all respects as modish as the 1914 high school girls in any large city. When they troop by to school, one doesn't have to go to Fifth avenue for fashion hints.

With the heating apparatus in the two schools out of repair the girls sat through part of the first session of the week in modish but frigid silence. Then along came Superintendent Peaslee and dismissed them, his idea being that if style interfered with studies it was better to do without studies as a safety first move against the girls catching cold.

Mechanics are busy today trying to instill new hope into the boilers at the high school. Principal Copeland of the Breed School says nobody has been near that building to look after the repairs to the boilers. It looks as if the high school girls will be the first to return. In the meantime, they are making the sewing machines at home hum, stitching up some new things to wear that aren't a bit more protection against the weather than the garb of which Superintendent Peaslee complains.

DON'T WANT TO RETURN.

Some of the girls say they won't return to school even when the boilers are repaired, because they think the superintendent was "just horrid" in his criticism of their attire. To which the superintendent retorts that he guesses there won't be any nonsense, and that if there is there won't be any Christmas recess when affairs get straightened out.

STOLE TO SPEND ON CHORUS GIRLS AND CHAMPAGNE

In the Malden Court today Louis Vega, the young chauffeur who stole over $16,000 in cash from his mistress and fled to New York a month ago, pleaded guilty to the larceny and was held in $5,000 for the Grand Jury.

The total stolen was $16,697. The total recovered was $11,890. In addition, a $2,500 automobile was found in Vega's possession. The police believe he "blew in" over $3,000.

Mrs. William Pray, from whom the money was stolen, is the wife of a wealthy retired contractor of No. 5 Locust park, Everett. Since the theft she has been on the verge of nervous prostration.

How Vega spent his new riches on chorus girls at a Boston theatre, on joy rides and wine suppers is told by the police and private detectives who worked on the case. Vega was captured as a result of his going to the home of a former employee in Brookline to get an overcoat he left there. This former employer noted the New York number on the car and communicated with the police. Private detectives on the case had already enlisted police aid and Vega was captured.

MYSTERY ABOUT STORY.

The whole story of the theft is shrouded in some mystery. It is known that on August 29 Mrs. Pray had Vega drive her to Boston and there drew the money from her bank. Neighbors say she was extremely nervous about the European war and feared its effect upon finance in this country.

Arrived at home, Mrs. Pray counted the money, with Vega's help. Then locked it in a small safe-deposit box and thrust it into a closet.

Vega watched where it was hidden, waited his chance, and a few days later found the key to the little box. He took an opportunity to open the box and abstract the money, then disappeared and went to New York.

Vega is a young man about twenty-four, dark complexioned, with curly hair and a generally pleasing appearance.

FULL CONFESSION.

Vega made a full confession to Chief Hill of Everett, when he was questioned last night. He said that after taking the money he hurried to New York and bought a car, and that at first he thought of returning to Italy.

Then, he declared, remorse overtook him. After a time he came to Boston with the idea of making restitution. Then fear of prosecution and the impossibility of making good the amounts he had spent led him to change his mind and he remained thus, hesitating as to what to do, till he was arrested.

He says the money, something over $11,000, on his person when he was arrested, did more than anything else to convince him that he could not make restitution.

He pleaded guilty it was taken by the authorities and he was today unable to furnish the $5,000 bail.

LINDBERG SMILE WAS A SCOWL; DROP CHARGE

ATTLEBORO, Oct. 1.—Is Selectmen have dismissed a charge made against Andrew Lindberg of annoying two girls by smiling at them, because he was really frowning at them. Also they have held Patrolman William F. Sargent blameless for threatening to arrest Lindberg. "When you cannot tell whether a man is smiling or scowling, you cannot blame an officer for doing his duty," says the selectmen.

Lindberg, who is married, was walking on the street, Miss Loretta Foley and Miss Mary Rivers told Patrolman Sargent that Lindberg had annoyed them by smiling at them. Sargent reproved Lindberg, saying: "Stop annoying girls and go home or I will arrest you."

Lindberg, angered at the reproof, hurried home. He talked it over with his wife. He decided to prefer charges against Sargent of abusive and profane language and of failing to arrest him (Lindberg) after the girls had complained.

At the hearing Lindberg demonstrated to the satisfaction of the selectmen that the girls took for an impudent smile was really a scowl. So the selectmen exonerated Lindberg from smiling, because he was scowling, and exonerated the officer from having threatened to arrest Lindberg, and then not carrying out his threat.

The luncheon will take place at the American House at noon. Both the Philadelphia Americans and the Boston National teams have been invited.

MURRAY TAKES COMMAND OF POSTOFFICE

Former Congressman William F. Murray of Charlestown, appointed postmaster of Boston to succeed Edwin U. Mansfield, who has held the office since 1908, today took charge of the Boston postal district in his office in the Federal Building.

The new postmaster was greeted by a host of newspaper men, postoffice officials and friends. The office of the postmaster on the second floor was filled with beautiful floral tributes.

Conspicuous among the floral decorations was a large set-piece depicting a letter with a stamp and postmark addressed to "Hon. W. F. Murray, postmaster, Boston, Mass." The postmark read: "Washington, D. C., Oct. 1, 1914." It was the gift of the Massachusetts congressional delegation to Washington.

Change Routes of Dorchester Lines

Beginning tonight at 7:30 and continuing each night except Saturday night, until subway work at Dewey square permits a return to the regular routes, all inbound Dorchester avenue, Summer street and Federal street cars will run on their regular route to Dorchester avenue and Broadway Extension and then via Broadway Extension, Harrison avenue, Beach street, Atlantic avenue, and then on their regular route. There will be no change in the route of outbound cars.

English Mill Man Here to Buy Cotton

John M. Nichols, one of the leading mill men of Manchester, England, was one of six passengers, who arrived in Boston today on the Leyland liner Iberian from Manchester and Liverpool. Nichols is on his way to Tennessee to purchase a great supply of cotton for the Manchester mills. It is planned to keep the English mills running in spite of the war and the outlook is said to be an excellent one.

'Exterminate the English,' Kaiser's Command to Men

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Times says today that Emperor William issued this order to his men on August 19:

"It is my royal and imperial command that you concentrate your energies for the immediate present upon one single purpose, and that is that you address all your skill and all the valor of my soldiers to exterminate first the treacherous English and walk over General French's contemptible little army."

Steamer Slips Tybee Bar and Proceeds

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 1.—The British steamer Concord, which cleared yesterday for Liverpool and went aground on Tybee bar during a heavy sea, was released this morning by the high tide and continued her journey. The vessel apparently suffered no damage.

"PASTOR MILLS TOO BUSY TO CALL ON GIRLS"

Miss Caroline Wilson of the First Unitarian Church of Watertown, who resigned from the Parish Committee as a result of recent rumors over whether or not Pastor G. Grover Mills shall resign, took a hand today in the controversy as why the pastor is disliked.

"The talk of his being a favorite with the younger girls of the parish is all bosh," she said. "People are opposed to him because he is not social enough. Some of the ladies against him are against him just because he doesn't come to see them sufficiently often. He is too busy with his work among the poor for society. He is doing a great work for the church.

"A small clique of the very wealthy have been accustomed to rule the church and dominate the pastor. They cannot dominate Dr. Mills, and so they are anxious to be rid of him.

"It is not true that he is engaged to one of his congregation. I am sure, I never saw him with any girl particularly. He hasn't time."

An Advertisement of the Filene Women's $25 Suit Shop

Probably the Largest Shop in America Devoted to Suits at One Price

Filene's

In this Filene $25 Suit Shop right now are more than fifty new styles. The many varying style tendencies of this unusual season are covered. A dozen types of figures are provided for.

$25

In reading, please remember that this $25 Suit Shop is only a part of the Filene Suit Shop containing Women's Suits at $18.50 to $225. By the part you may judge the whole.

A Resume of Styles in Filene $25 Suits for Women

No trouble at all, this year, to find a becoming suit that is also stylish. The styles permit wide latitude and our designers have made the most of it.

One drawback to a season like the present, it is more difficult to tell of the many styles. Briefly they may be classified under these heads:

BASQUE SUITS — REDINGOTE SUITS
FUR-TRIMMED SUITS — MOYENAGE SUITS
MILITARY SUITS — COSSACK SUITS

Coats are long, they are short, they are medium length. Some are long but so made as to look short. Some have peplums that ripple and flare. The short military jacket is also here. Take your choice.

Skirts show signs of approaching fullness, usually concealed in pleats which often spring from a plain yoke.

Trimmings are velvet, fur, buttons and lots of braid (the military influence).

Collars are usually of the high rolling variety, occasionally both high and straight (military again). Coats often button close up under the chin.

Sleeves are nearly all set in, long and almost tight.

Ten Out of Fifty Filene $25 Suits for Women

Reading from left to right, the suits sketched are:

1. Blue broadcloth with velvet collar; tailor stitching.
2. Broadcloth with fur collar and fur on cuffs.
3. Broadcloth with velvet collar and cuffs. Coat pleated behind. Semi-military front. Pleated back.
4. Plum-color broadcloth; 3-button cutaway coat; skirt has pleated panel in front. Excellent model for large sizes.
5. Tete de negre velour; velvet-faced buttons full length of skirt in front.
6. Blue cheviot with braid on coat and skirt. A favorite with conservative women.
7. Military suit of green broadcloth trimmed with fur; note the flaring peplum.
8. Blue gabardine; double collar of velvet; button trimming.
9. Blue broadcloth; skirt has inverted box pleat in front.
10. Black gabardine with round velvet buttons and loops; fancy cord ornament.

Materials in our $25 Suits

Broadcloth pre-eminent. Guaranteed cloths—growing more scarce daily, but plentiful here at $25.

Serge, of course. This is decidedly a tailored season.

Soleil—a cloth belonging to the Bedford cord variety.

Gabardine, which has run a close second to serge for several seasons.

Poplin for service as well as good looks.

Velour—a cloth of which the great Pouret is very fond.

These are the stand-bys—the usual sprinkling of novelties here also.

Colors of $25 Suits

Brown and green are favored—tete de negre brown and Black Forest green.

Navy blue leads as usual. Midnight blue and a lighter shade are also good.

Plenty of black suits here for those who want them.

Linings of $25 Suits

Our $25 suit linings are guaranteed peau de cygne or satins, and the guarantee covers wear for two seasons. Every suit must have a pair of self shields and extra buttons.

Tailoring of $25 Suits

We believe that our $25 suits for women are equal in tailoring to the average $35 suits in the average store. This can easily be verified upon examination. Wherever an improvement can be made in the tailoring it is done without thought of expense.

Quantity buying gives us a great advantage

One tailor alone makes nearly five thousand suits for us each year. We practically guarantee this man his year's business. In return he gives us quality that we could get in no other way at the price—quality that stores buying $25 suits in the usual hand-to-mouth way cannot possibly command.

In tailoring this man is a past master. We do not look to him for styles—the best efforts of the best foreign designers are at our command and the faithful reproduction of an expensive imported model in a suit to sell for $25 is a stunt that our tailor enjoys as much as we.

No alterations on two out of three suits and no important alterations on four out of five due to the fact that this $25 Suit Shop fully recognizes that women of different types must have suits of different types—suits of different cut as well as suits of different styles; and provides accordingly.

This $25 Shop prides itself on its ability to FIT the stout women, the slender women, the long-waisted and the short-waisted women, and the several other types that come between; and to please the elderly conservative customer as readily as the one of youthful instincts whose first requirement is dash and smartness. Test us out on this statement.

HEARST THANKS REGAL SHOE CO. FOR AID TO COTTON MOVEMENT

William Randolph Hearst has telegraphed to President E. J. Bliss of the Regal Shoe Company his thanks for and appreciation of Mr. Bliss' offer to enlist the Regal Shoe Company in the Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton movement in a new and generous manner. For every pair of shoes sold in the Regal stores during sixty days, beginning October 1, a pound of cotton will be purchased at the ten-cent rate. This is expected to mean a total of at least 385 bales purchased in the two months.

The Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton movement is receiving more and more support. President John J. Martin of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange and the Exchange Trust Company has just sent his check for $50 to buy a bale at the ten-cent rate.

Mr. Hearst's telegraphic reply to President Bliss is as follows:

MR. HEARST'S REPLY.

E. J. Bliss,
Regal Shoe Company.
Boston.

Your proposal to buy a pound of cotton for every pair of Regal shoes sold through your retail stores during October and November is extremely generous and will be highly beneficial.

According to calculation, this liberal plan of yours should result in a purchase by your company of approximately 400 bales of cotton. This estimate is based on your last year's sales.

An important product like yours is without doubt increasing in sales every year, and the co-operation of the public in your liberal plan should still further increase the demand.

In thanking you for your kind letter, I beg to express the hope and belief that your sales this year will result in the purchase of over 500 bales of cotton and in corresponding benefit to the cotton situation and to the country.

(Signed) WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

The details of President Bliss' plan were conveyed to Mr. Hearst in the following letter:

Mr. William Randolph Hearst.
New York City.

Dear Sir—Accept our congratulations for originating a simple, practical method for financing the cotton crop, and we want to let you know that we cordially indorse your activity in promoting the commercial interests of the South, and indirectly benefiting the whole country through the "BUY-A-BALE-OF-COTTON" movement.

We believe that you have "started something," and a patriotic movement of this sort that will result in a national benefit to the country as a whole will sweep aside all prejudice and petty jealousies, and you will receive the hearty co-operation of every big publication in the country.

We have joined the movement in a small way in response to a suggestion that appeared in the Boston AMERICAN—BUT WE WANT TO DO MORE.

TO RESULT IN GREAT BENEFIT.

We believe that every Regal customer is interested in the welfare of the South, and we propose to use every Regal store in the United States as a clearing house to enable the general public to participate in this movement.

For every pair of Regal shoes sold in our stores for sixty days, beginning October 1, we agree to purchase one pound of cotton at ten cents a pound. We are instructing each of our stores throughout the country to place an order for cotton every week on this basis.

I might explain that the sales for corresponding period last year would indicate that our purchases, in accordance with the arrangement, would probably amount to 192,748 pounds of cotton.

We know the idea will inspire enthusiasm in every man in our employ, and we will devote prominent window space for appropriate display in every store and are making arrangements to give the plan the fullest possible publicity.

Yours very truly,
REGAL SHOE COMPANY.
E. J. Bliss, President.

POPE CABLES BLESSING TO FEDERATION

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—Receipt by cable of the Papal blessing made notable the adjournment of the national convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies.

The message from the Holy Father arrived too late to be read to the delegates, but it was presented to the executive board at its meeting after the convention, by Charles I. Denechaud of New Orleans, the retiring president. The text of the cablegram, which was sent to Cardinal Gibbons and addressed to the president of the federation, was as follows:

"Rome, Sept. 28, 1914.

"Cardinal Gibbons, President Convention National American Federation of Catholic Societies, Baltimore:

"The Holy Father, Pope Benedict XV., was very much touched by the homage, filial devotion and loyalty expressed by the American Federation of Catholic Societies in national convention assembled, under the patronage of Your Eminence.

"He gives thanks, coupled with his best wishes for every success of your work and anticipates happy results and an increase in the work of your important federation. He sends from the bottom of his heart the apostolic blessing as each you implored.

"CARDINAL FERRATA,
"Papal Secretary of State."

The forty-five delegates from Massachusetts broke up into small parties, several of which left for Washington and New York.

Among the latter was the party of clerical delegates, composed of Mgr. P. J. Supple of Boston, Mgr. Arthur J. Teeling of Lynn, Mgr. James J. Chittick of Hyde Park, the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, the Rev. James J. Murphy of Brighton, the Rev. James N. Supple of Charlestown, the Rev. Fr. Francis J. Maley of Danvers.

SALEM DOCTOR DEAD, WIFE DYING IN AUTO CRASH

Dr. William A. Foster, who lived in Flint street, Salem, is dead at a farmhouse near Schoon Lake, N. Y., as the result of an automobile accident. His wife is at the Ticonderoga Hospital suffering from a fractured shoulder and hip, and internal injuries which are expected to be fatal. Mrs. W. A. Merrell of Salem has a fractured shoulder. Her husband and the chauffeur, Joseph A. Muse of Salem, escaped injury.

The front springs of the Merrell automobile broke, and the car plunged down a ravine thirty feet to a creek.

The Merrells, with Dr. Foster and Mrs. Foster as their guests, left Lake Placid on their return to Salem. Mr. Merrell is a salesman for the Hollingsworth & Whitney Company, No. 50 India street, Boston, manufacturers of paper.

TESREAU SUED BY A GIRL FOR HEART BALM

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Charles E. Tesreau, known to baseball fans as "Jeff" has filed in the Supreme Court a bond for $25,000, guaranteeing that he will be present at the trial of a breach of promise action which Miss Clara Young has brought against him.

Miss Young, who lives in Perryville, Mo., alleges that "Jeff" courted her for several months and then asked her to be his wife. She consented, and it was generally known, she says, that she was his fiancee. Many letters passed between the couple, which Miss Young says she will produce at the trial. About the time that Miss Young expected to become Mrs. Tesreau she was startled to see an announcement of Tesreau's marriage to Miss Helen E. Blake. This was just prior to the time he started on a baseball trip around the world.

Tesreau has filed an answer denying the allegations. In one of the letters which Miss Young intends to use at the trial the baseball pitcher wrote:

"You spoiled me the evening we came from your sister's—I mean I was already spoiled—and that first kiss was enough to have no tell you about it. And I have never regretted a word that I ever told you or a minute that I spent with you."

In another letter to her he queried: "I gave my arms lots of exercise last Winter, didn't I?"

In a third letter he wrote: "Mcgraw has been bidding me ever since the new came out. He asked me if I could do my best when I was in love. Everyone in the club now calls me Clara."

Mrs. Pinchot Takes Stump for Husband

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot went through her first day of campaigning in her husband's place with flying colors. Mr. Pinchot, candidate for the United States Senate, is stricken with ptomaine poisoning and is confined to his home. At 6:30 a. m. she left her hundred-acre farm and went by automobile to a factory where Mr. Pinchot had been scheduled for his first speech of the day and distributed copies of Mr. Pinchot's platform. Thence she traveled to other places where meetings were scheduled and repeated the program.

Autoist Is Given 6 Months; Appeals

Daniel Munnerlyn, who figured in a wild and most daring auto ride late yesterday afternoon, in which Patrolman Daniel P. O'Neil of the Roxbury Crossing station was obliged to shoot to stop the machine, was today given six months and fined $25. He appealed.

Roosevelt Denied Change in Venue

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Supreme Court Justice Alden Chester today denied the application of Theodore Roosevelt for a change of venue in the libel suit brought against him by William Barnes. Roosevelt maintained that he could not get a fair trial in this county.

DRAPER SECRETARY QUITS.

MILFORD, Oct. 1.—Oliver H. Lane, for the past twenty years private secretary to the W. F. Draper family, has resigned. He has turned over to William K. Richardson such property of the Draper estate as he held as trustee under the will of General Draper. Mr. Lane was private secretary for General Draper when the latter was Congressman, also when Ambassador to Italy.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Subscribers to last season's Symphony concerts in Cambridge have until next Monday in which to renew their subscriptions and secure the seats they occupied.

The Newton police are puzzled as to the identity of a man about eight; who was found on Nonantum square. He claims that his name is Louis Crouse, but does not know where he lives.

The Y. M. C. Union will open its sixty-third season with a reception from 7 to 10 o'clock tonight. Young men who are newcomers to the city, attending college or engaged in business, are invited.

Dr. Charles P. Huse, formerly of the University of Missouri, has been appointed professor of economics at Boston University. Francisco Zuazaga, formerly a member of the faculty of the University of Porto Rico, will be the instructor in Spanish.

William H. Munroe, of No. 5 Brown street, Waltham, who has been unconscious since Sunday at the Waltham Hospital, remains unchanged. His home is on the dangerous list and physicians are still puzzled over his symptoms.

Stephen T. Connolly, fifteen, of No. 61 Second street, South Boston, has been presented with a silver medal by the S. P. C. A. in recognition of his heroic action in rescuing five horses from being burned to death.

Alleged Society Burglar Is Shot

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—An alleged society burglar, a handsome man of thirty, whose apparel and manners made him perfectly at home in the atmosphere of Fifth avenue, lies dying today in the Knickerbocker Hospital of a bullet wound inflicted with a police revolver. He describes himself as Herbert J. Eaton, married, of 416 West 178th street, and was shot while trying to escape after his arrest on the charge of robbing the apartment of Mrs. Gertrude Pike, wife of Arthur E. Pike, a rich cotton broker of No. 440 Riverside Drive.

JOHN D. PICKS HARVARD MAN TO AID LABOR

Another former Harvard man, well known in Boston, has been chosen for important work by the Rockefeller Foundation. William Lyon McKenzie King, former Canadian Minister of Labor, is to have charge of investigations of labor conditions for the foundation.

This word made public for the first time the fact that the foundation is preparing to spend millions to alleviate labor conditions. Jerome D. Greene, secretary of the foundation, is like King, a former Harvard man. King won a Harvard fellowship in 1897.

GOOD RECORD IN CANADA.

The selection of King for work on labor conditions is a particularly wise one in view of his record in Canada. There his first great work was an investigation of sociological conditions in Toronto in the course of which he found much government work was done under a sweating system. The work included the manufacture of militia and postal uniforms. Mr. King reported to Postmaster-General Sir William Mulock, with the result that in new contracts, stringent anti-sweating regulations were imposed and a tremendous amount of human misery was swept away at a stroke.

Since then Mr. King has acted as intermediary in more than thirty strikes. In practically every case he has effected a settlement, being remarkably successful in bringing either side to accept the other's point of view.

Formal announcement of the labor research activities is expected to be made immediately. When an official of the foundation who is high in the confidence of Mr. Rockefeller was asked today concerning the new work, he replied:

LABOR FOUGHT BILL.

"The fact that this announcement comes from Ottawa is a surprise. I might say it is premature. An official statement explaining just what the duties of Mr. King are to be is being prepared at the office of the foundation. I believe it is to be ready for release to the newspapers very soon, probably this afternoon. I am not at liberty to discuss the appointment now."

Olive Fobes Bride of H. O. Tilton at Lexington Home

Miss Olive Northrop Fobes of Lexington was married at the home of her parents to Henry Odin Tilton by the Rev. Charles Francis Carter, pastor of the Park Congregational Church in Hartford, Ct., assisted by the Rev. John Mills Wilson, minister of the Unitarian Church in Lexington.

The ribbon-bearers were Miss Lucy Brooks Cole of Springfield, Miss Ruth Susan Clark of Holyoke, Mrs. Frederick Glover White of Newton Centre, Miss Viola M. Sullivan of Winchester, a cousin of the bride, all girls who attended Smith College with her, Miss Katherine Tilton of Lexington, a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Eunice Campbell Milne of Scarsdale, N. Y.

VETERANS OF ELECTION BOARD GO IN SHAKEUP

The political wiseacres today predicted that Mayor Curley would name to three of the vacant places on the Election Board the following citizens:

John E. Baldwin, former alderman.

John J. Murphy of South Boston, a defeated senatorial candidate in the recent primaries, and a former representative.

Herbert W. Boyer.

No one could be found to vouch for these names, but they were heard in the air as Mayor Curley's probable choices. The other members of the Election Board by dropping seven members. The shake-up ousted some of the oldest officials on the board.

Frederic Eaton has been in the department fourteen years and his salary was $2,000 a year. Thomas F. J. McMackin has been in the department seven years at a salary of $1,750. George W. Stevens has been an assistant registrar for the last twenty years. His salary was $1,500. Joseph A. Calkins, Jr., Paul E. Kane and Norton Ball have been in the department from five to fourteen years at the rate of $4 a day.

Although they were said to have been picked for discharge by Mayor Curley before his term began, they were not notified of their removal until the time limit set by the civil service law of all the department employes. The discharge of these men is in accordance with the Mayor's plans to reorganize the department. He has already prohibited the department employes from receiving party assessments for election work, and last week accepted the resignation of Election Commissioner Tilton S. Bell.

Two of the men discharged, Frederic Eaton and Thomas J. McMackin, were assistants to the commissioners. Their positions were abolished by the Mayor before he left city hall.

Howard Places Papers for Hurley Recall on File

Former Mayor Howard of Salem has filed nine papers for the recall of Mayor Hurley with City Clerk Clifford Entwistle. Each paper had spaces for fifty signatures. According the papers, Mr. Howard said:

"Outside of the papers just filed, there were taken out from my office twenty-one papers, containing spaces for more than 1,000 signatures. And I understand that these twenty-one papers have been pretty well filled. I understand that all the papers will be deposited Thursday."

Seats on Sale for New Tremont Show

Seats went on sale at the box office of the Tremont Theatre today for the opening performances of "Potash and Perlmutter," which will open to town next week, following its run of a whole season in New York. This American comedy is of an entirely new type and the keen character drawing, together with the exceedingly funny situations, have made its performance that has pleased all. The cast includes all the New York favorites, so that Boston will see the comedy under most advantageous circumstances.

SOCIETY GIRLS PROMINENT AT BROCKTON FAIR

BROCKTON, Oct. 1.—"Boston Day" opened at the Brockton Fair grounds today with every promise of a large attendance. Among the most striking features of the fair are the thoroughbreds figuring in the horse show, together with their fair society riders.

Eleonora Sears rode the Vanderbilt horses, wearing much applause. The Lawsons and Miss Dorothy Forbes were in attendance.

Beachey has promised today to break his new world's record of looping the loop in the air seven times. He says he will loop the loop twice as many times if atmospheric conditions are favorable.

Prominent in the horse show ring were Edward F. McLean of Washington, father of the "world's richest baby"; Miss Belle Beach Bain of New York, and Miss Helen Preece and Baron Godfrey of England and Harold Vanderbilt.

McLean won in classes for hunters and in a jury class. F. Lothrop Ames won in the class for thoroughbred hunters. Miss Jean Lawson won in a class for pairs over the Vanderbilt stables, and William Zeigler, Jr., won in another class for pairs over the Vanderbilts.

J. W. Shaw and Charles H. Pollard were the chief winners of the day in the poultry show.

Mrs. Eunice Fertig, twenty-five, of No. 131 Hyperview street, Campello, was overcome near the automobile enclosure and died at the emergency station. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Eleonora Sears and Harold Vanderbilt, prominent figures at the Brockton fair horse show.

Evelyn Nesbit Shows How to Do the New "Roule-Roule" Dance.

First of a series in which the most famous dancers of modern times will teach the steps of the newest dances for the stage and ball room so that anybody can do them without further instruction.

Wadsworth Leads Calder for Senate

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—With ninety-two districts missing throughout the State, James W. Wadsworth, Jr., former speaker of the Assembly, had an unofficial plurality of 3,850 over Representative William M. Calder for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

Plan Sepulchral Monument to Pope

ROME, via Paris, Oct. 1.—Pope Benedict has appointed a committee composed of Cardinals Merry del Val, Bisleti and Cagliano to prepare plans to be used in the erection of a sepulchral monument to the late Pope Pius X. in the crypt of St. Peter's.

Curley Lost Ten Pounds in Maine

Having lost ten pounds and worn out a pair of new shoes in five days, Mayor Curley is back in town from his hunting and fishing trip in the Maine woods.

"We shot only a few partridges and caught some trout, and trout and beans were our chief meals," he says.

BRAIN TRADERS GET OPTION ON JAMES J. HILL'S

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—St. Louis is to be put on the map as a world's center for skeletons and brains if the Business Men's League can be interested in the proposition of Aug De Castellane Seymoure of Tours, France.

Mr. Seymour is vice-president of the Mississippi Valley Skeleton Company, incorporated in New Rochelle, N. Y., he says, with $750,000 capital stock. It is purposed, he says, to build a plant here if proper inducements are offered. The skeletons will be sold to medical colleges and the brains will be sent to Europe to be examined by brain specialists.

"I intend immediately to seek mortgages on the skeletons of your prominent St. Louisans and liens on the brains of the geniuses and wizards," said Mr. Seymore.

"When the mortgages are signed we will pay 10 per cent of the value of the skeleton to the owner. When they die we will present our mortgages to the relatives.

"The factory for the preparation and polishing of the skeletons ought to be built and in operation within a year.

"From statistics we have discovered that the skeletons of men between eighteen and thirty years are worth $32 apiece; between thirty and forty, $17.50; between forty and forty-five years, $9.98, and more than forty-five years, $7.42.

"On my way to St. Louis I stopped in St. Paul, and while there signed up for the brain of James J. Hill. We are to pay $2,500 for it. It was great work to get it so cheap."

The following have been nominated for the board this year: Walter V. McDuffee of Springfield, Maria S. Cole of Chelsea and Harry Smalley of Fall River.

The act provides any teacher may retire when sixty years of age, and all must retire on reaching the age of seventy.

WHITE URGES PROGRESSIVES TO AID M'CALL

Norman H. White of Brookline, back in the Republican party after a season with the Progressives, today urges the Bull Moosers to vote for former Congressman Samuel McCall, the Republican candidate for Governor.

"It is my humble opinion that the best interests of the State now demand the election of Congressman McCall. I say this as a citizen of Massachusetts, because I believe it is my duty to put citizenship above party politics," declared White.

"Mr. McCall is honest, fearless and earnest. His long experience in public affairs and his unswerving loyalty to his State and the country demand that his services be retained in office. He is, in my opinion, pre-eminently fit and qualified to fill the office of Governor, and Progressives and Republicans, and Democrats as well, can obtain more public good by his election than by the election of either of the other candidates."

Men Come to Morse's For Real Value

131 Different Styled Fall Suits Displayed in Our Windows Represent 8000 Suits Inside Our Store

THIS window demonstration of ours is the talk of the town.

If you're among the few men who haven't been down here to see this exhibit of Morse-Made Clothes—make it a point to get down this way today. We want you to see the great diversity of styles and patterns and materials to be had in Morse-Made Clothes. Fact is, we want you to know right now why so many men invariably select Morse-Made Clothes in preference to others.

Styles that are abreast of the times. Semi-English, which means English styles modified. Nothing extreme—but new, up-to-the-minute styles which all live men like to wear. The shoulders follow natural lines, the vests are high-cut and the trousers rather straight. And there's a model to fit every type of man—tall, short, well-built or stout—always a Morse suit in the correct proportion to fit you. Necessary alterations are made by our corps of expert tailors—and result is a made-to-your-measure fit.

Morse-Made Clothes are the choice of men who travel the economical road to smartness. They are not the cheapest clothes to buy—but they are the cheapest clothes to wear. Whether you pay $15.00 or $35.00 for a Morse-Made Suit, it is guaranteed to give satisfaction—absolutely.

$15 $17.50 $20 $25 $30 $35

To Hold and Inspire Your Confidence. To Give You Full Value for Every Cent Invested. To Make Morse-Made Clothes Stand for Satisfaction and Surety, Has Been, Is and Will Be Our Governing Principle

At Morse's you can see the kind of hats, and shoes, collars and shirts, cravats and gloves, that will be worn by men who demand and wear only correct clothing and accessories.

5-CENT DINNER AT FIRST BOSTON 'DRY' BAR TODAY

Boston's first temperance bar opens at the Morgan Memorial at 5 p. m. today.

Here is what 5 cents will buy over this regular foot-railed bar, presided over by Albert Pierce, a former barkeeper.

A plate of beans
Frankforts.
A cup of coffee.
And the right to "stay around" and even sleep in the chairs.

If a guest is not known to be one of the "old rounders," as W. M. Gilbert of the Morgan Memorial puts it, he will be given a ticket for a bed at one of the cheap lodging houses and a job the next morning.

This institution paid out $15,000 last year in wages to men of this character, who were employed in their different industries.

The new barroom has a piano and library. No matter how intoxicated a man is he will be admitted, if he behaves himself, for he can get only temperance beverages.

HUB EXHIBITS CITY BUSINESS AT FOOD FAIR

"The Taxpayer's Dollar—What Becomes of It?" might well be the motto which the city of Boston is to hang over its big exhibit at the Boston Domestic Science and Pure Food Exposition, which opens next Monday in Mechanics building and will continue until October 31, under the auspices of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs and the Boston Retail Grocers' Association.

For the first time in its history, Boston is going to "show all its toys." For the first time, it is going to make a comprehensive demonstration, right out in public, of how it is run. For the first time, the forty or more great departments of the metropolis are going to set up little segments of themselves under one roof and show the man in the street just what constitutes a day's work for a great municipal corporation.

This is what Dr. E. M. Hartwell, the city statistician, who is in charge of the exhibit, calls a unitary display of the city of Boston. Furthermore, previous fragmentary displays have been for the benefit of outsiders.

Under Dr. Hartwell's plan, the city will try to show what it is as a municipal corporation under the present charter; what it is as a working organization under departments and the Mayor; what it is as a social group of nearly 750,000 people. The general plan of the exhibit embraces a synoptic exhibit, setting forth by models, diagrams, maps and comparative tables the political, administrative and social aspects of the city, its standing and rank as the fifth among the leading cities of the country, as the capital of the State, New England's metropolis and the fifth port in the world.

BRIDE'S RUSE SPOILS PLANS OF 'KIDNAPERS'

Walter R. Trott of No. 97 Dix street, Dorchester, and his bride, formerly Miss Caroline Criswell of the same address, are be their honeymoon up through the Berkshire valley to Albany today, thanks to their cleverness in eluding would-be kidnapers, who planned to separate the bridal couple, and even to put Trott in handcuffs.

The marriage took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Abbie Criswell, on the third floor of the Dix street house. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles A. Fulton, pastor of the Dudley Street Baptist Church.

The bride suspected that young people among the guests had planned some trick. The newlyweds slipped into some old clothes and let their suit cases, packed with traveling garments, down from a third-floor window to the back yard with a clothes line. Then they stole down the back stairs to a vacant suite on the second floor. There they waited until the mischievous guests thought that had left and started into the street for them.

After giving the guests time enough to get around the front of the house the couple slipped out the back way, picked up their suit cases, went around by a back street to an automobile, which was waiting.

The disappointed guests, especially those who had the handcuffs for the bridegroom, finally concluded they had been foiled.

The bride is twenty years old and has been employed in a down-town department store. Trott is a clerk for Arthur Teague. He met Miss Criswell by coming to her mother's house for board and room.

Doctor's Wife Saves Poisoned Revere Plumber

Joseph Duffy, a plumber, of No. 72 Neponset street, Revere, was saved from death by poisoning at Lynn through the quick skill and medical knowledge of the wife of Dr. Charles L. Holt, of No. 14 Franklin street. Duffy, who has been for some time in failing health, had a bottle of muriatic acid in his workroom and drank that instead of his medicine.

Being burned by the acid, he ran from his work to the house of Dr. Holt, where Mrs. Holt gave him an emetic of sweet oil. He was removed to the Lynn Hospital and is expected to recover.

Gardiner M. Lane Slightly Better

The condition of Gardiner M. Lane, who was operated upon yesterday by Dr. Samuel Sinster at the private hospital of Dr. Edward Reynolds on Dartmouth street, was reported as slightly improved today. The nurse in charge of Mr. Lane said: "Mr. Lane is a shade better this morning. However, his condition is serious. He is still on very thin ice. From present indications we have cause to hope that he will come out of it all right." The hospital authorities would not state the nature of the operation.

TRENTON GIRL IS FIRE CHIEF AT WELLESLEY

When College Hall at Wellesley burned last March, some two hundred Wellesley girls demonstrated that their fire drill is an effective one by marching steadily out of the building—while sparks dropped all around them from the burning roof overhead.

The fire drill is carried out by the fire chief and fire captains, and this year Lucretia Traver of Trenton, N. J., has been elected fire chief, to have full charge of the drill. She is a senior.

From the junior and sophomore classes, fire captains for the different dormitories have been selected. Virginia Viall of Providence is the only sophomore captain. She has charge of Lake House, the temporary dormitory for seniors and sophomores. This structure stands near the ruins of College Hall and is to be used as a dormitory for this year only. The other fire captains are:

Miss Josephine Lansing, Hartford, in Woods Cottage; Miss Elizabeth Williamson, Detroit, in Freeman Cottage; Miss Ruth Richards of Honolulu, in Wilde Hall; Miss Elizabeth Remsen, Brooklyn, N. Y., in Norumbega Cottage; Miss Louise Domhoff, Cincinnati, in Beebe Hall; Miss Ruth Miner, Dingerland, N. Y., Cosgrove Hall; Miss Mariana Sherman, Pittsburgh, Ston Hall; Miss Louise Miner, Lakeville, Ct., in Pisko Cottage; Miss Dorothy Ehrich, in Shafer Hall; Miss Katherine Chalmers of Worcester, in Pomeroy Hall.

Massachusetts is poorer by $26,000,000 annually because her farms are idle, cultivated, according to Secretary Wheeler of the State Board of Agriculture, who has just completed a tabulation of statistics on consumption and supply.

TO ASK WALSH TO OUST FISH COMMISSIONER

Clarence W. Rowley, attorney for the State Supervisor of Small Loans, announced today that he would ask Governor Walsh to remove the State Fish and Game Commission as inefficient, and for not maintaining a better morale in their corps of deputy fish and game commissioners.

Mr. Rowley's declaration of war is the result of a skirmish he had with Deputy Commissioners Goodwin, Leonard, David and Tribeau in the Dorchester Court over clam digging cases. Mr. Rowley secured the discharge of seven men brought into court by the game wardens charged with taking clams in flats polluted by sewage. Mr. Rowley argued, and his argument was eventually supported by Judge Churchill, that the State Board of Health and the Fish and Game Commission have today no legal right to prosecute for clam digging in polluted waters because the order prohibiting such digging states no fixed limit of time, but merely says "prohibited till further orders."

EYES TROUBLE YOU?
TRY THIS SIMPLE RECEIPT.

We all know some home remedy for our minor troubles, and by the use of these remedies many a doctor's bill is saved and doubtless many a life.

How few know what to do when their eyes become tired and ache, or feel dry and inflamed from abuse and overuse? In the morning your eyes feel rough or sticky, or they trouble you when you read. What do you do? Most of us rush off and get glasses perhaps at some cheap store where no skill is used in fitting our eyes), which we very often do not need at all. Generally speaking, unnecessary glasses which they might better do [illegible] and proper stimulation with a little [illegible] strengthen their eyes that glasses which never be necessary. Here is a [illegible] that may be tried soon to give comfort and to [illegible] the eyes, and it is harmless and has the enthusiastic endorsement of thousands who have used it:

5 Grains Optona (1 tablet).
2 Ounces Water.

Use as an eye wash night and morning, or three or four times daily. Soothes the tired eyes, quickly relieves inflammation, clears the vision and sharpens the vision. Many who have used it no longer feel the need of glasses, and have ceased to fear that they will soon be obliged to wear them. Optona can be obtained from your nearest druggist and prepare the solution at your own home.

ENDEAVORERS WILL PRAY FOR PEACE

JOIN PEACE GATHERINGS IN BOSTON CHURCHES!

Services next Sunday in all Boston places of worship will be devoted to the great cause of peace in Europe.

The clergy dedicate their endeavors to a continued expression of the American peace sentiment so generally voiced in the great mass-meeting on Boston Common and in the public schools.

It is the duty of all American citizens and of citizens of all nations now in America to join with the clergy and carry on this great work.

With nearly one-half of the world engaged in a bitter and dreadful struggle, a neutral nation can appeal only to the Highest Court in the universe to restore men to sanity and serenity.

Every man and woman should stir his or her neighbor to this duty, and make the peace gatherings in the churches an expression of the united voice of a great peace-loving people.

"Sixty thousand Christian Endeavor Societies in America will pray for peace at their respective meetings next Sunday," today declared the Rev. Francis E. Clark, president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. He continued:

"I have sent a letter to the President of the United States, saying: 'We believe that the great majority of these societies in all denominations and in all parts of the country will remember your request, and we hope and pray that this international and interdenominational organization, which is now found in all lands and whose members are united in close fraternal bonds, although some are now unfortunately fighting in every army, will be used by Providence, as one means of bringing about an enduring peace.'"

Boston public schools will have peace exercises next Friday, October 4. In many of the schools the peace exercises will be participated in by the pupils singing peace hymns and reciting peace selections.

Judge Harvey Baker will address the Eliot School at 2 p. m. Miss Lucille Gulliver will speak at the Roxbury High. Assistant Attorney-General Thomas P. Riley will speak at 1:45 at the East Boston High School. Miss Susan FitzGerald at the Girls' High School at 8:50 a. m., Mrs. Marion Booth Kelley at the Hyde School, Roxbury, at 9 a. m., and Joseph Lee at the Howdoin School at 2 p. m.

Prayers for peace will be said in every church in New England next Sunday. The enthusiasm over the President's proclamation has taken hold of the congregations and they are making extensive preparations to make Peace Day one long to be remembered.

Besides the peace hymns, which will be sung by choruses of children in many churches, President Wilsons proclamation will be also read and preached upon.

Many pastors will hold special union peace meetings. The Baker Memorial, Uphams Corner, will have the help of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, as well as the Stoughton-Street Baptist Church, in a peace service next Sunday evening at 8:30.

Every minister in Boston has prepared a special order of peace services.

The following peace services for the masses will be held next Sunday: Trinity Church at 5 p. m., under the auspices of the Massachusetts Peace Society. Speakers, Bishop Lawrence, the Rev. Dr. S. Alexander Mann, George A. Gordon and Samuel J. Elder. St. Paul's Cathedral, special service of intercession for peace with sermon by Bishop Lawrence at 10:30 a. m. Peace rallies in every suburban church at 7:30 p. m.

The Rev. A. Z. Conrad will preach a special peace sermon in the Park Street Church at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. Cortland Myers, D. D., will have a special peace rally in the evening. At noon more than 500 members of the Tremont Temple Brotherhood will pray for peace. Dean Rousmanière will hold a special peace service in St. Paul's Cathedral next Wednesday at noon.

The offerings in all the churches will be given to the Red Cross Society.

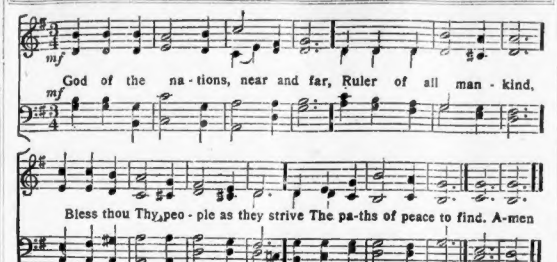
The Rev. Arthur S. Burrows, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Cambridge, said today: "Peace is to season our prayers and petitions next Sunday. What an opportunity to have the Christian people of this Commonwealth offer up their peace pleadings! Let every heart say a prayer. Go to church and say it. Join with others in praying for peace. Sing the glad message of peace. Think what blessings we are enjoying today in our own land, because we are at peace and are neutral in this great war.

"May the time come when America will be asked to mediate between the warring nations. No Sunday should appeal to us as so timely as Sunday, October 4. Be sure to get into some church on that day."

The Rev. W. W. Bowers, D. D., of Baker Memorial, Dorchester, said: "Make Sunday, October 4, a memorable day. Get everyone out to church. Speak to the people in your own community about the day. Tell everyone it is a special day for prayer for peace. In other words, arouse a special interest in your own neighborhood and get everyone to think about peace. We have so much war news. Now, let us have some peace news. Get everyone in touch with the churches and let our prayers be earnest and consecrated to a noble cause."

The Rev. Duncan McPhie, secretary of the Boston Evangelical Alliance, declared: "It is a glorious occasion, this peace Sunday. Don't spend the whole day in doing nothing. Go to some church and think and pray for peace. Get peace well into your mind. Encourage your friends to talk peace on that day. Give up war talk. Talk peace. Pray for peace in your church. Make this day a day when nothing is to be said about war—anything that savors of war—just talk and pray for peace all day long."

The Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America urges that the following Peace Hymn, by Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Minister of the Church of the Messiah, New York, (tune: St. Agnes, by J. B. Dykes), be sung in all churches in America next Sunday.



II

"The clash of arms still shakes the sky,
King battles still with king,
Wild through the frighted air of night
The bloody tocsins ring.

III

"But clearer far the friendly speech
Of scientists and seers,
The wise debate of statesmen and
The shout of pioneers.

IV

"And stronger far the clasped hands
Of labor's teeming throngs,
Who in a hundred tongues repeat
Their common creeds and songs.

V

"O Father, from the curse of war
We pray Thee give release,
And speed, O speed the blessed day
Of justice, Love and Peace!"

GERMANS BOMBARD ANTWERP AFTERKING ALBERT REFUSES TO SURRENDER

BIG INDIAN ARMY REINFORCES ALLIES

Italian ships and promises to remove the mines and pay indemnity.

70,000 INDIAN TROOPS ARRIVE.

Among the most important items of war news today is the announcement that 70,000 Indian troops, the flower of Great Britain's Oriental army, have arrived in France and are being rushed to the battle line.

Paris and London are confident that the accession of this fresh fighting force will quickly decide the issue of the battle of the Aisne. While the public is not informed as to what part of the 120-mile battle line is to be reinforced by the Indians, who arrived in Marseilles on Tuesday, it is believed that they are about to add their impetus to the turning movement of the allies' left wing, which is hourly making the position of Von Kluck's German army more desperate. The Indian troops comprise two infantry divisions and four brigades of cavalry.

The latest Berlin official statement, which says that the great battle is proceeding without decisive results, admits that "it is apparent that the enemy is receiving large reinforcements." The attacks on the German left wing, as well as the right, are unrelenting, as is evidenced by the German official statement that "the enemy, assisted by the garrisons of the Verdun-Toul fortifications, continues aggressive measures."

FRENCH WINGS RUSH AHEAD.

Today's official statement by the French War Office is very brief. "We have progressed," it says, "on our left at the north of the Somme, and on our right in the southern part of the Woevre region," but it admits that there is no change in the situation as a whole.

An official statement from Berlin, issued last evening, says the Germans have repulsed the allies' advance near Albert, eighteen miles northeast of Amiens. London reports, received by the Daily Mail, say that the Germans destroyed the town of Albert, and that they are trying to drive a wedge into the allies' front at this point. The allies, consequently, extended their front to overlap the enemy. Desperate fighting resulted, according to the English report, but the Germans failed to pierce the allies' lines.

CONTINUE TO BOMBARD ANTWERP.

The continued bombardment of Antwerp, following the refusal of King Albert to surrender, divides interest today with the larger operations in France.

Despite the strength of the fortifications defending the temporary capital of Belgium, the news that the Germans are bombarding with their ponderous 42-centimeter siege guns, the same as reduced the forts at Liege and Namur, leads military men to believe that the reduction of the works at Antwerp is a serious possibility. An official cable from Antwerp today, however, says the garrison is still in condition to make effective resistance.

In the eastern theatre of conflict, continued success of the Russian attacks on the German invaders of Russian Poland is reported by General Duke Nicholas, but denied by the German War Office. The Russian advance toward Cracow and into Hungary is proceeding, Petrograd says, without effective opposition. A correspondent of the Novoye Vremya reports that in the fighting at Drauskenike, two entire German divisions, 24,000 men, were destroyed. Vienna, now fully cognizant of the extent of Austrian reverses, is said to be in a state of panic.

The cruiser Cumberland has added to the glory of British naval achievement by capturing the German gunboat Soden and ten German merchantmen off West Africa.

It is officially announced at Nish that the Servians on the Drina-Shabats front have repulsed the Austrians toward Paracbitsa with enormous losses.

Unconfirmed reports are current in Pekin that Chinese and Japanese troops have been engaged in battle west of Kiao-Chau. A Tokio official statement says that German warships are furiously bombarding the Japanese positions about Tsing-Tao, and that aeroplanes are dropping bombs on the Japanese troops.

NO ADVANTAGE GAINED BY EITHER SIDE, BERLIN REPORTS

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Oct. 1.—Attacks and counter attacks without any decisive result mark the progress of the battle in France, the War Office said today. A statement issued at midnight said:

(OFFICIAL.)

"The forts of Antwerp are being bombarded at long range with success. The city is almost wholly invested. Every sortie by the garrison has been repulsed. Approach to the city is made difficult by the extent of the area flooded to check our operations.

"In France the fighting on our right wing continues with neither our forces nor the enemy gaining any decided advantage; the situation in the centre or unchanged; on our left wing the enemy, assisted by the garrisons of the Verdun-Toul forts, continues aggressive measures.

"It is apparent that the enemy is receiving large reinforcements, but his forces are being held in check by counter attacks while we maintain the siege of Antwerp.

"In the east we are bombarding the Russian fortress of Osowiec with success. Our troops are advancing in Russian Poland, though opposed by heavy forces; it is stated from Vienna that the Austrian armies are meeting with success in their Galician and Servian campaigns."

German Cost of Arms

U. S. Foods Safe in Neutral Bottoms

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The British government today notified the United States that it would not interfere with the shipment of foodstuffs to Holland in neutral bottoms. Consul Arthur Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, personally notified Secretary Bryan to this effect.

PROGRESS BY ALLIES ON THE LEFT AND RIGHT WINGS

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The allies have made progress on both their right and left wings, but the situation as a whole has undergone no change, according to the following official announcement issued here this afternoon:

OFFICIAL.

French Cost of Arms

"There is no modification in the situation as a whole. We have progressed, however, on our left at the north of the Somme, and on our right in the southern part of the Woevre region."

Today's statement shows that the turning movement north of the Somme, which is the purpose of putting the German line of communications and forcing the withdrawal of the entire right wing of the German army has met no check. The advance of the allies' right wing, too, is continued, to a menace to the western end of the German army. If the French should succeed in striking the Germans back so that their line through Luxemburg was threatened, the right wing of the Germans as well as their centre would have to retreat.

There is only one danger to the allies in this advance at both ends of the battle line in France. This is that their line may become so extended that the Germans can cut through. This peril has undoubtedly been guarded against, however, by holding in reserve the troops who were permitted to retire from the firing line by the arrival of reinforcements. These can be hurried to any threatened point of the battle front.

GERMAN AIRSHIPS AND FLEET IN ATTACK ON JAPANESE

TOKIO, Oct. 1.—German warships in the Bay of Kiu-Chau are furiously bombarding the Japanese positions about Tsing-Tao, according to an official statement issued this afternoon. German aeroplanes are assisting the warships dropping bombs upon the Japanese, who have lost two officers and a number of men.

The Japanese artillery is replying vigorously to the German attack and a German torpedo destroyer has been sunk in the harbor. The artillery duel has been continuous for more than twenty-four hours.

A Japanese mine-sweeper was sunk off Kiao-Chau on Wednesday with a loss of three killed and thirteen wounded, and another mine-sweeper was damaged. One man was killed and six injured on the second vessel.

BATTLES NEAR ANTWERP ARE DESOLATING BELGIAN TOWNS

By BERTON L. FRAZIER.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

GHENT, Belgium, Oct. 1.—Town after town in northern Belgium, many of them dating back for centuries, are being destroyed by fierce artillery duels between German and Belgian guns. Fighting is going on between Belgian and German soldiers over a line about sixty miles long, stretching from Lierre to Malines to Termonde to Alost and thence in the direction of Wereghem.

Refugees from the east say that the thunder of the great German guns bombarding the forts south of Antwerp is incessant. They declare that the German general had demanded the surrender of Forts Waelhem and Wavre Ste. Catherine, but that the Belgian reply was merely to redouble the violence of their cannonade.

Near Ghent, along toward sunset, I was favored with an unusual spectacle. A Belgian aeroplane high in the sky was wheeling above the smoke arising from Termonde. It was being shelled by German guns. We saw two shrapnel burst, throwing out puffs of dirty yellow smoke that hung in the still air for ten minutes in prominent relief against the pale blue evening sky. Even from our distance we saw the tiny craft reeling in the air swell caused by the bursting of the shells. The aeroplane rose swiftly and then vanished.

England's Expenses Jump $230,000,000

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Owing to the war, England's national expenditures have increased nearly $230,000,000, as shown by the statement issued today covering the first half of the financial year, which ended Wednesday. The revenue approximates $380,000,000, a decrease of $13,500,000 as compared with the same period last year, while the expenditures aggregate $670,000,000.

Kaiser Reported Ill at Suvalki

ROME, Oct. 1.—A dispatch received here says that the Kaiser is very ill at Suvalki. Dispatches last week reported him suffering from inflammation of the lungs.

BRITISH CAPTURE TEN GERMAN GUNBOAT AND MERCHANT SHIPS

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The capture of the German gunboat Soden and ten German merchant steamers, including the liner Arnfried, by the British cruiser Cumberland at the mouth of the Kamerun River in West Africa was announced by the admiralty today. The other ships taken were the Kenapa, Paul Woermann, Amsinck, Max Brooch, Henrietta Woermann, Erna Woermann, Hans Woermann, Jeanette Woermann and Alin Woermann. All carried large quantities of coal and general cargo.

"The Germans sank the floating dock and Herzogin Elizabeth, the admiralty states, but they can be raised.

AUGUSTOWO AND KOPETZ ARE CAPTURED BY THE RUSSIANS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The capture of the German positions at Augustowo and Kopetz and the repulse of German troops in the region of Suwalki today were announced by the Russian embassy here. Colonel Gelelewski, military attache of the embassy, issued this statement:

"On September 25, after stubborn fighting, our troops captured the German positions of Augustowo and Kopetz.

"On September 29 we took the defiles between the lakes at Simne Sereje and Punsk. The Germans have been driven back into the region between Suwalki, Sejny and Mariampole. Our advance continues.

"The German siege guns continue to bombard Osowiec, but without success. At Scutchin and Andrejew only unimportant skirmishes are reported."

England Incensed at Tales of Atrocities

Captain J. B. Jago of the Leyland liner Iberian, in from Manchester and Liverpool today, said: "Back at my home at Waterloo, England, there are large numbers of Belgian refugees, most of them women and children, and the stories they tell of their experiences are frightful. The atrocities have incensed all England."

Athletics.

I hope that we will be able to win the world series, but if we are going to lose I trust that we will be the worst beaten team on earth and that the Braves will have to win in four straight.

Either pose could allay any suspicion from the mind of everybody by having a line-up good at the series will be knocked out to six [illegible] on account.

Yet it is today a pleasure that either can should [illegible] off the slate sounding in four straight games. In the play a season we are satisfied if we are able to win three games out of four when playing with the tail-end clubs.

In no world series with which the Athletics have figured have both pennants been played.

It took five games for the Giants to defeat us in 1905. In 1910 we defeated the Cubs in the same time.

The closing year we played our last series, requiring six playing days before we could down New York. Last year we cleaned off the big line in five games.

Win or lose I hope that for the reasons above the games don't go more than four or five games.

AFTER a time, her ear becoming accustomed to the firing as a city dweller's to the distant roar of city traffic, Mrs. Galland slept. But Marta could not follow her advice. If transiently at least, she had found something of the peace of the confessional, the vigor of youth was in her arteries; and youth cannot help remaining awake under some conditions. She tiptoed across the hall into her own room and seated herself by the window. The symbol of what the ear had heard the eye saw—war, working in tones of the landscape by day with smokeless powder; war, revealed by its tongues of flame at night. Ugly bursts of fire from the higher hills spread to the heavens like an aura borealis and broke their messengers in sheets of flame over the lower hills—the batteries of the Browns sprinkling death about the heads of the gunners of the Grays emplacing their batteries. Staccato flashes from a single point counted so many bullets from an automatic, which directed by beams of the search-lights, found their targets in sections of advancing infantry. Hill crests, set off with flashes running back and forth, demarked infantry lines of the Browns assisting the automatics.

There were lulls between the crashes of the small arms and the heavy, throaty speech of the guns; lulls that seemed to say that both sides had paused for a breathing spell; lulls that allowed the battle in the distance to be heard in its pervasive undertone. In one of them, when even the undertone had ceased for a few seconds, Marta caught faintly the groans of a wounded man—one of the crew of a Gray dirigible burned by an explosion and brought in his agony softly to earth by a billowing piece of envelope which acted as a parachute.

Fighting proceeded in La Tir in stages of ferocity and blank silence. The upper part of the town, which the Browns still held, was in darkness; the lower part, where the Grays were, was illuminated.

"Another one of Lanny's plans!" thought Marta. "He would have them work in the light, while we fire out of obscurity!"

LIGHT WIRES CUT

[illegible] was in darkness, for the Grays had cut the wires in the main conduit shortly after she had heard the groans of the wounded man. There the automatics broke out in a mad storm, voicing their feelings at getting a company in close order in a street for the space of a minute, before those who escaped could plaster themselves against doorways or find cover in alleys. Then silence from the automatics and a cheer from the Browns that rasped out its triumph like the rubbing together of steel files.

From the line of defence, that included the first terrace of the Galland grounds as the angle of a redoubt, not a shot, not a sound, silence was the part of officers and men as profound as Mrs. Galland's slumber, while one of the Browns' searchlights, like some great witch's slow-turning eye in a narrow radius, covered the lower terraces and the road.

Marta gave intermittent glances at the garden; the glances of a guardian. She happened to be looking in that direction when figures sprang across the road, crouching, running with the short, quick steps of no body movement accompanying that of the legs. The searchlight caught them in merciless silhouette and the automatic and the rifles from behind the sandbags on the first terrace let go. Some of the figures dropped and lay in the road and she knew that she had seen one hit for the first time. Others, she thought, got safely to the cover of the gutter on the garden side. Of those on the road, some were still and some she saw were moving slowly back on their stomachs to safety. Now the searchlight laid its beam steadily on the road. Again silence. From the upper terrace came a great voice, like that of guns, from a human throat.

"Why didn't we level those terraces? They'll creep up from one to the other!" It was Stransky.

In answer was another voice—Delmo's.

"Perhaps there wasn't time to do anything. If they get as far as the first terrace—well, in case of a crisis, have hand-grenades. But, God wows, I hope we shall not have to [illegible] them."

AID THE PRICE.

After an interval, more figures made a rush across the road. They, too, in Stransky's words, paid a price for seeing the garden. But the flashes from the automatic rifles and the automatic provided a target for a Gray battery. The blue spark that flies from an overhead trolley or a third rail, multiplied a hundredfold, broke in Marta's face. It was dazzling, blinding as a bolt of lightning a few feet distant, with the thunder crash at the same second, followed by the thrashing hum of bullets and fragments against the side of the house.

"I knew that this must come!" something within her said. If she had not been prepared for it by the events of the last twelve hours she would have jumped to her feet with an exclamation of natural shock and horror. As it was she felt a curious, nervous thrill without rising from her seat. A pause. The next shell burst in line with the first, out by the linden trees; a third above the veranda.

"We've got that range, all right!" thought the Gray battery commander, who had judged the distance by the staff map. This was all he wanted to know for the present. He would let loose at the proper time to support the infantry attack, when there were enough cobblets across the road to make a charge. The cobblets kept on coming, and, one by one, the number of dead on the road was augmented.

Marta was diverted from this process of killing by piecemeal by a more theatric spectacle. A brigade commander of the Grays had ticked an order over the wire and it had gone from battery to battery. Not only many field guns, which are the terriers of the artillery, but some guns of siege calibre, the mastiffs, in a sudden outburst started a havoc of tumbling walls and cornices in the upper part of the town.

A CIRCLE OF FLAME.

Then an explosion greater than any from the shells shot a hemisphere of light heavenward, revealing a shadowy body flying overhead, and an instant later the heavens were illuminated by a circle of flame as the dirigible received its deathblow. But already the Brown infantry was withdrawing from the town, destroying buildings that would give cover for the attack in the manner as they went. Two or three hours after midnight fell a silence which was to last until dawn. The combatants seated on their arms, Browns saying to Grays, "We shall be ready for you tomorrow" and the Grays replying "So shall we."

Marta, at her window, her eyes following the movements of the display, now here, now there, found herself thinking of many things, as in the intermissions between the acts of a drama. She wondered if the groaning, wounded man were crying for water or if he were wishing that some one at home were with him. She thought of her talk with Lanstron over the telephone and how mad and feminine and feeble it must have sounded to a mind working in the inexorable processes of the clash of millions of men. She saw his left hand twitching in his pocket, his right hand gripping it to hold it still, on that afternoon when, for the first time, she had understood his injury in the aeroplane accident as the talisman of his feelings—his [illegible] his controlled feelings.

She saw Fuller leaning against the moist wall of the dark tunnel, suffering as if he had never seemed to her that man could suffer, his agony an irresistible plea. She saw Westerling, so conscious of his strength, directing his cheesmen in a death struggle against fate. She saw that he was coming to his house as his headquarters when the last test of the strength of the Titans was made.

BREATHED GRATITUDE

She hoped that her mother was still sleeping; and she had seconds when she was startled by her own calmness. Again, the faces of the children in her school were as clear as in life. She breathed her gratitude that the procession in which they moved on the day war was hours ago out of the theatre of danger. In the simplicity of big things, her duty was the pursuing shadow of his conscience. She should see war, alive, naked, bloody, and she would tell her children what she had seen as a warning.

Silence, except an occasional rifle shot—silence and the darkness before dawn when, she knew, she knew, concentrate the lightning around the house. She glanced into her mother's room and marveled at a miracle to find her sleeping. Then she stole downstairs and opened the outer door of the dining-room. A step or two brought her to the edge of the veranda. There she paused and leaned against one of the stone pillars. Defiance himself was in a half-reclining position, his back to a tree as if he seemed to be nodding. Except for a few on watch over the sand-bags, his men were stretched on the earth, moving restlessly at intervals, either in an effort to sleep or waking suddenly after a spell of harassed unconsciousness.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR GROWTHS NO LONGER NECESSARY

The keen mental suffering of women troubled with unsightly hair growths is totally unnecessary. Such growths can be removed instantly and hereafter, without the slightest fear that the hair will grow more heavily than before. Saturate the hair with a few drops of El Rado, the matchless liquid hair remover; in a few moments the hair will vanish, leaving the skin soft, smooth and perfectly clear.

While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time; its action is absolutely harmless, simple and thorough. When the hair finally does reappear it is finer instead of coarser, and can instantly be removed again for a still longer period than before.

El Rado is becoming as standard a toilet article as face cream or tooth powder; thousands of society women use it regularly as a remedy and aid to good looks. El Rado has no equal, for there is not a beauty preparation in the world that can improve one's appearance more than the successful removal of an unsightly hair growth. Try a few drops on your arm; prove for yourself El Rado does everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely satisfied. In 50c and $1.00 size bottles, at all leading druggists and department stores, or direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Co., New York. The War-God's Levy!

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

THE War-God's mailed fist lies heavy on the frail shoulder of woman-kind. On her valiant heart he levies his heaviest, blackest tax. For he gives her the waiting end of war—and he asks the tiny pink baby of her bosom for the blood-drinking end of his sword. For to hold the dreary, waiting end of war-time is a terrible thing.

The man who goes to the front is walking in tragic shadow, but he is one with the Indian who can dance and paint and shout and at the last whirl into the riot of action where he turns devil and light-hearted and knows not if he has courage, fear or hunger. He is on the move, and the same brain that served him in peace that would have shrunk from suffering and pain is numbed.

But the woman behind must harvest and cook and the dishes must be washed the same as ever, and there's nothing to do but wait with a heart that is big with fear and raw at the roots. And truly she hands up to the gray War God and his bare blade the tiny, soft baby of her bosom, for the dead man at his iron-shod feet, with the limp hands and the blue sunken eyelids and the dark live stream spreading softly from under his breast is still her little son, her tiny baby with the helpless hands and the searching mouth.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Their Married Life

Warren Gets the Automobile Fever and Helen Also Becomes Enthusiastic

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"GET on your coat and come along," said Warren, enthusiastically.

"But where, dear?" said Helen obediently, running into the bedroom and pulling out her coat from the hanger on the door. The hanger clattered to the floor, and Helen could not help stopping to pick it up.

"Don't bother about that now; can't you see I'm in a hurry? We're going to take a little spin in Wilson's new runabout."

Helen did not ask questions, but pulled her hat on hurriedly and pulled a face veil from the box in her dressing table drawer.

Warren watched her impatiently.

"Do you need that veil? You look 40 per cent. better without it. I can tell you."

Helen was screwing up her mouth under the veil, which she had pulled very tight.

"But the wind is terrible in a machine, Warren; my hair would be all down my back when we got home if I didn't wear a veil."

"Well, are you ready?"

"Just a moment, dear, till I tell Nora that we may be late for dinner. Go along and I'll meet you in the hall."

A moment later they were going down the elevator. Helen gave her veil another little pull, but Warren was too preoccupied to notice. His mind was on the machine, and Helen wondered vaguely if he would succumb to the auto fever.

He had talked automobile for almost a week now, ever since she had returned from Carrie's, and the idea of a car appealed to Helen if they could afford it. Of course, she would always think of that first.

The machine was a little understuting affair of dark gray color. It ordinarily seated two, but there was a rumble seat that could be let down for emergency.

WARREN ENTHUSIASTIC OVER THE LITTLE CAR

"Notice that it doesn't show at all unless it's used!" said Warren as he helped let down the seat. "What do you think of it? Pretty good-looking little boat, won't it be?"

Helen thought it was, and Warren scrambled into the rumble as Mr. Wilson, a business friend of Warren's, helped her into the seat beside him. Helen had never been in a car where the seats were raised so little from the ground, but she settled herself comfortably in a minute later they were off.

"Comfortable?" said Warren, leaning forward. "How do you like the low seats?"

"I like them; I've been hearing about this car all week, Mr. Wilson," turning to the man at her side. "So I have really been anxious to see it."

The day was perfect for riding, with a little breeze which was a decided wind as they sped along. Helen was leaning a little back, she had stopped for a veil; loose ends of hair flying in the breeze always spoiled her enjoyment of a motor-ride, and she and Warren did not know so many people who owned cars.

"Do you know anything about a car, Mrs. Curtis?" said the man at the wheel, turning to her as they drove slowly along.

"Hold Helen, turning to him quickly.

"Do you think you'd like to drive one?"

"She'd never have nerve enough," from Warren; "she isn't the kind of a woman who would ever drive her own car if she had one."

Helen's cheeks burned suddenly. She knew that as a general thing she would be too nervous to attempt anything of the kind, but the certainty in Warren's voice made her angry, although she had no idea what for.

"You never can tell about a woman driving a car until she owns one," said Mr. Wilson, changing speeds suddenly and pulling out the cutout. They shot forward, the wind almost taking Helen's breath away.

"If you don't mind riding fast I'll show you that she can make a little speed," he shouted above the wind. And for the next few minutes they tore along the road at what Helen thought a terrific speed.

"Fifty," said Mr. Wilson proudly, slowing up. "Did you notice how quickly she picks up?" turning to Warren; "can't be beaten on the hills, either?"

HELEN REALIZES THE CAR IS A PRETTY GOOD ONE

Helen hardly understood the automobile enthusiasm, but she understood enough to realize that the car must be a pretty good one. The idea of buying a car had never occurred to her until lately, but she realized now what fun it would be to own one. They had turned and were coming back now. The sun was setting and the road was perfect.

Warren was asking Mr. Wilson something about starting on comfortably, and as Helen was not interested she gave herself up to the pleasure of the moment. They were home almost before she realized it. Turning into a familiar street brought her long-suffering parents's shoulder.

"Oh, yes," answered the old gentleman, hoping his coat wouldn't be stained. "I know him all right. But has he any money to marry on?"

"Money? Why, father, darling, look at the lovely diamond ring he has given me!"

"Yes, I have noticed it. That's what I mean—has he any money left?"

"Better wait till we get one. I haven't decided to buy one at all, so don't get your heart set on it. I may have to take the money out of the bank to put into it, and I don't want to do that."

"No, dear; I'd rather never have one than have you cripple yourself to get the money. Please, Warren, don't do anything foolish." In her earnestness Helen had put both hands on his shoulders imploringly, a thing Warren detested.

"I'll tend to that part of it," he said irritably. "Don't stand talking about it all night. Let's go into dinner."

The happy girl laid her cheek, blooming with love and cochineal, on her long-suffering parent's shoulder.

"Oh, yes," answered the old gentleman, hoping his coat wouldn't be stained. "I know him all right. But has he any money to marry on?"

Mlle. Zina Brazia, of the Opera-Comique, Paris, says: "The use of Savon Cadum is a guarantee of a beautiful complexion."

Many complexions are ruined through the false economy of using cheap and impure soap. The beauty of a woman's face and hands is worth more than the few cents saved in the use of an inferior soap. Savon Cadum, the great French Complexion soap, is as pure as is possible for any soap to be made. It costs more than the ordinary soap because it is worth more. At drug and dept. stores, 50c.

New Way to Treat the Hair

The air is full of floating dust, dirt and disease germs, which settle upon the hair.

There is a natural oil on the head that holds the dust fast, and in a short time you have dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

The pores in the scalp are stopped up, the hair roots get no nourishment, and then the hair begins to fall out. Cleanliness is the one thing needed, and Birt's Head Wash is the ideal shampoo to bring it about. Its use will put the hair and scalp in a healthy, natural condition, so that faded, lifeless hair may resume its natural color and vigor.

Birt's Head Wash is made of Refined Creamy Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. There are no better things than these known for cleansing the hair and scalp, and doctors will tell you so if you ask them.

In hygienic tubes 25c., at drug and dept. stores.

Anty Drudge Drives Away Nightmare

Mrs. Excited—"Oh, Anty Drudge, come here quickly! I don't know what's the matter with Minnie, she's talking so queerly! She woke me up pounding me in the back."

Anty Drudge—"Well, I declare! She's asleep and having nightmare! Listen to what she says. She's dreaming about tomorrow being washday, and thinks she's doing the washing. Poor child, tomorrow I'll show her the easy way to wash with Fels-Naptha Soap."

Use Fels-Naptha Soap to relieve you of the heaviest and most disagreeable part of your housework, and you'll be so much happier and feel so much better, you won't have anything to worry about.

Weekly washing, daily scouring and scrubbing, everything about your work for which you use soap and water can be made easy and pleasant for you if you do it the easy, pleasant way.

The Fels-Naptha Way is the easy way. It is the way that lightens housework and gives tired women a chance to rest. Fels-Naptha Soap works best in cool or lukewarm water.

Better buy Fels-Naptha by the carton or box.

GOLD SENT TO CANADA MAKES RATES EASIER

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

No appreciable change in the business situation is evident, but the decline in sterling exchange is a good symptom and some encouragement is derived from the statement that money appear as little more plentiful. The Bank of England reports the gain of $6,220,000 in gold in a week. Its statement today shows a proportion of reserve to liabilities of 22.81 per cent., compared with 22.33 last week.

LATEST FROM LONDON.

The latest from London is that there is less talk there of re-opening the stock exchange, as little progress has been made in negotiations with that end in view. "Lombard Street," it is cabled, "is more affected by the financial disorders of Latin-American republics than by the direct action of the war. If Mexico, Argentina and Brazil had continued in normal condition, neither London nor New York would have been so paralyzed."

It is estimated that the commercial debts of Germans to British manufacturers total about £300,000,000.

BIG GOLD SHIPMENT.

With intent to ease the exchange market situation, the bankers who are incharge of the gold pool made arrangements to ship $10,000,000 to Ottawa at once and the committee expects within a few days to be in a position to sell exchange against the amount forwarded. An effort will be made, it is announced, to sell directly to those having payments abroad. The decline in exchange rates was attributed to the announcement that a large gold shipment to Canada would be made at once. While grain bills are not quite so plentiful as earlier in the week, an increase in cotton bills is reported.

BIG SUM FOR INVESTORS.

It is estimated that dividend and interest distributions made today will total about $159,000,000, compared with $160,000,000 on October 1, 1913. Dividends amount to $86,920,084 and interest to $72,778,036. There has been considerable decrease in dividend payments within a year. This reflects smaller earnings by many industrials and by railroads in general. Railroad presidents have held another conference in regard to the reopening of the rate case, but if anything important developed it was not divulged. Through cutting its operating expenses during August to the amount of $2,848,999, the Pennsylvania road was able to report an increase of $834,891 in net for the system. Btu since January 1 there has been a decrease of $2,385,445 in net.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The New York Central is planning an issue of $40,000,000 in 5 per cent. notes and J. P. Morgan & Co. have been asked to head a buying syndicate.

No more activity is reported for the copper market.

The Iron Age says that the United States Steel Corporation is now booking foreign business at practically the rate at which it was coming in before the war.

The Dutch liner Rotterdam, held up in Plymouth, England, was allowed to proceed to Rotterdam after discharging at the British port 3,454,080 pounds of copper taken from New York.

German Women Give Up Jewels for Guns

ROME, Oct. 1.—According to reports received here a committee of women has been formed to induce all the women of Germany to give up their gold ornaments to be turned into a fund to buy arms. Several million marks have thus been gathered. Each woman receives in exchange an iron ring inscribed: "I gave gold for this."

The Auburndale-Lake street subway line, which now runs via Commonwealth avenue, will be run every twenty minutes to Park street subway via Beacon street, Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street, entering the subway at the Public Garden.

The Cambridge-Cottage Farm bridge line will be run to the North Station subway via Cottage Farm bridge, Commonwealth avenue, Beacon street, Massachusetts avenue, Boylston street, entering the subway at the Public Garden on fifteen-minute time, as at present, during normal hours, and on ten-minute time during rush hours. These two lines and the Cottage Farm-Dudley street line (during rush hours) via Commonwealth avenue, Beacon street and Massachusetts avenue, will provide service on the surface of Beacon street between Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues.

All other Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue service will be run in the Boylston street subway, entering at Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue.

D'Annunzio Urges Italy to Enter War

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Asked to define Italy's role in this war, Gabrielle D'Annunzio said today:

"Every day that passes is a day of eternal glory lost for Italy, who should enter the struggle with France immediately. This war is not a simple conflict of interests, but a struggle of races, a trial of breeds, which the enemies of the Latin race are pursuing according to the most ancient laws of violence."

French Architects Expel Noted Germans

DAVIS TO RUN FOR CONGRESS IN THE SIXTH

BEVERLY, Oct. 1.—Announcement was made at Progressive headquarters today that Charles H. Davis, the South Yarmouth millionaire, will be the Progressive candidate in the Sixth Congressional District against Congressman A. P. Gardner, the Republican candidate for re-election.

Mr. Davis, who is known as the "Cape Angel" of the Progressives, on account of his $50,000 contribution to the party last year, will take up the fight laid down by A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Andrew ran for Republican and Progressive nominations. Mr. Gardner beat him for the former. He won the Progressive nomination by only twelve votes and he has just declined it, saying that he feared it would be a useless fight.

The vacancy thus created in the Progressive ticket in the Sixth is to be filled by the importation of Mr. Davis from the Cape. Formal announcement from the new candidate was expected later today.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON OCTOBER 1, 1914

BOSTON AMERICAN
80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCT. 1, 1914.

America's Opportunity Has Arrived

Now Is the Time to Regain the Nation's Supremacy on the Seas and Send Our Ships to Every Port

The AMERICAN publishes on this page a picture of the ensigns of the merchant fleet which once sailed from Boston. There are one hundred and twelve flags. Each represented, not a single ship, but a FLEET of ships plying between Boston and all parts of the world, owned by Boston merchants and carrying the American flag upon every sea and into every harbor where men wished to buy or sell.

Oh, the departed glory of a great merchant marine. How we should mourn it if it were gone to return no more.

It has gone, but we can bring it back, because we lost it by the events which we can now control. We have discovered the causes of our great loss and we know that the remedy is in our own hands. Our great merchant fleet sprang up out of the Napoleonic wars. It was destroyed by our own great Civil War. Now a more deadly conflict in Europe gives us an opportunity to recover it again.

Consider what it means to prosperity in New England to have innumerable fleets of ships carrying our products to the remotest parts of the earth. Consider the extent of our maritime dominion when Boston, less than a quarter of its present size, had 112 lines carrying the floating ensigns of the prosperous merchants of Boston into every seaport of the world.

The prosperity of Boston was only indicative of the prosperity of other New England ports which have declined with Boston. Portland, Portsmouth, Salem, Fall River, Providence and the Connecticut cities on the Long Island Sound all could tell their tale, of departed mercantile glory. This great movement of co-operation has revived the old optimistic, adventurous New England spirit and has prepared us to seize our opportunity when it should come.

NOW IT IS HERE. THE HOUR FOR BUSINESS MEN IN NEW ENGLAND TO ARISE HAS STRUCK. WAR, which GAVE us our maritime supremacy and which TOOK IT AWAY, is now paralyzing the competitive powers of all the great civilized nations except our own. Mr. Hearst asked his newspapers to put this question to the business men of America: "IF A GREAT CONFLAGRATION HAD DESTROYED THE FACTORIES OF YOUR COMPETITORS, WOULD YOU NOT STRIVE TO EXERT YOUR UTMOST ENERGY TO INCREASE YOUR OUTPUT AND TO SEEK THE CUSTOMERS WHICH NEED YOUR GOODS AND WOULD SUFFER A DEPRIVATION WITHOUT THEM AND WHO, BEING SATISFACTORILY SUPPLIED BY YOU, MAY REMAIN YOUR PERMANENT CUSTOMERS?"

Study this picture and never forget that years ago, when Boston was an infant city, she had one hundred and twelve fleets spreading the fame of her enterprise and prosperity all over the wide world.

LET US RECOVER IT NOW. We may never have an opportunity or a duty so great again.

Helping Government Ownership Without Knowing It

When You Tax the Passengers More, They KNOW That They Are Paying

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

The railroads have increased prices for mileage and single tickets.

It is announced, upon the suggestion of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that they will uniformly increase the charges to passengers.

This is done in place of increased freight rates, which the Commission opposes.

Welcome to the new idea.

As long as the railroads simply increase prices on freight, or give one shipper a lower rate than another, building up trusts and strangling individuals, the public cares little.

The public when it buys a ton of coal, a bushel of wheat, or a ham, knows and cares nothing about the "freight charges."

What you don't actually pay out of your pocket, what you don't see, you don't know.

But when the individual citizen of the United States finds that he is paying nine dollars for a commutation ticket instead of eight, or twenty-five dollars for a thousand mile ticket instead of twenty dollars, or ten cents more to get from his little mortgaged home to his little busy office, HE KNOWS WHAT IS HAPPENING.

And when the people realize what is happening, they come to know the difference between government ownership and private ownership. WE ARE WELL ON THE WAY TO PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF THE RAILROADS.

If anybody asks you WHY the government should own the railroads, just talk to him about the postoffice service.

While the railroads are planning to increase rates and are increasing rates, THE POSTOFFICE IS REDUCING RATES.

Every man in charge of a railroad must do all he can to increase the charges. For his success depends upon the amount of money that the railroad MAKES FOR ITS STOCKHOLDERS, or for the big financial gentlemen who gamble in and manipulate its stock.

On the other hand, every postmaster, every man elected to represent the people in public ownership, knows that his success depends UPON THE SERVICE HE RENDERS THE PEOPLE AND THE CHEAPNESS OF THE SERVICE.

It is an excellent thing to make the little individual pay more for his ticket, right out of his pocket, and see the difference in price, instead of letting him pay it in freight and in ways unseen.

When you tax the individual, let him feel the tax, AND HE WILL VOTE FOR THE GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP THAT STANDS FOR PUBLIC SERVICE INSTEAD OF PRIVATE PROFIT.

Old-Fashioned Mother vs. the Modern Woman

By DOROTHY DIX

RECENTLY a group of prosperous and successful business men were discussing the modern woman, and, as is the fashion of the day, saying some harsh and unkindly things of her.

In particular most of the men agreed that modern women were a poor and inferior lot as compared with the women of the past.

"Why, look at my own mother," exclaimed one of the men, "my mother had eight children. She cared for them, kept them clean, sent them to school and saw that they studied their lessons, made their clothes, nursed them when they were sick, and did her own washing, ironing, scrubbing and cooking.

"My wife thinks that she has her hands full with two children and managing a couple of good maids. She's a good manager so far as running the house is concerned and seeing to her children properly, but she does none of her sewing or housework, and yet is always rushed for time. Suppose she just had to do the work that my mother did. Why, she'd curl up and die at the very thought of it."

"Oh, the women of today aren't the women that their mothers were," sighed another man.

"No, and the men of today aren't the men their fathers were," exclaimed a third man, "and that doesn't mean that we are inferior to our parents, either. It simply means that we are different.

"Our parents, for instance, delighted in large families, but I'd just like to know which one of you men would like to have eight children?"

An exclamation of horror went around the circle. "All I can do to support one," laughed one man.

"That's it," said the other man, "and while we are talking about our mothers doing all the work of raising eight children, it's just as well to remember that father was helping out by sacrificing all of the little personal luxuries that we think we can't do without.

"While mother was cooking the food and darning the stockings, father was walking with the baby. He wasn't out dancing the tango, or sitting in a little game of poker that was likely to cost him the price of little Johnnie's schooling for a year. Father smoked a corncob pipe and cheap tobacco, and wore hand-me-down clothes, and never had a vacation in his life, nor took a pleasure trip.

"And he didn't expect anything of mother, either, except to be a good wife and mother. If she kept the house clean and gave him a hearty dinner, and took care of the children, and was reasonably amiable, she had fulfilled his ideal of what a man's mate should be. He didn't expect her to keep young and beautiful, and willowy, or to entertain him, or keep him fascinated.

"Believe me, there's one harder thing to do than taking care of eight children, and that is holding on to a modern husband. I'm not sure that mother didn't have an easier job than our wives have, for, if divorce is commoner now than it used to be, it's because we men demand so much more of our wives than our fathers did of theirs.

"Think of mother, old at forty. Her good looks gone, her figure gone, her grizzled hair slicked back from her face and done up in a little knob at the top of her head. Her feet encased in big, flat, comfortable shoes, a loose, comfortable working dress belted in at the waist by a voluminous checked apron. Her face beaming with goodness, with love and devotion to her own, but mighty little of the siren in mother's appearance.

"Suppose your own wife looked like that, and it's exactly the way that any woman is going to look who has eight children and does all the work for them, and who has fried out her complexion over the kitchen stove, cooking and washing, and who has no time to care for herself personally. Mother's picture is surrounded by the halo of a saint, as we remember it, but if our wives looked as sloppy as mother did, and as much like a back number, we'd be ashamed to be seen out with them in public, and nobody would blame us if we fell in love with a willowy chorus girl.

"The truth is the modern woman is just what we men have made her. We want our wives to have soft, white, squeezable hands, and if they do we must have servants to do our housework. We want our wives to look like fashion plates when we take them out, and so we must pay dressmakers' bills. We want our wives to go about with us and be chums, and so we cannot tie them down to the kitchen.

"We want our wives to be intelligent companions, and so we must give them leisure to read and belong to clubs, and improve themselves. That's all there is to it. We demand a wife with modern improvements, and we simply have to pay the price.

"But it always makes me tired to hear men complaining that women nowadays are not such wives as their mothers were. Why, to hold the modern husband, a woman has to keep herself right up to this year's model of a wife, and every one of these knockers would be a wife deserter if he was tied to this sort of a mate his mother was."

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

There are 30,295 acres in Boston? Of this, 1,137 acres are water, and 2,517 were originally water, but have been filled in.

IN THE MORNING

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

"THE wimmen from the city now," old Hiram Horton said,
"Has got a kind of silly way of holdin' up their head
And treatin' us poor natives like we didn't know white beans,
And callin' us gazabos jest because we're wearin' jeans.
I don't know what 'gazabo' means, but I know this, by dern!
Them wimmin from the city has a lot of things to learn.

"One of the things they've got to learn before they strike me right
Is how to git up mornings looking like they look at night.
They make you think of princesses dressed up at 10 p. m.,
But when they come to breakfast, shucks, you oughter look at them!
It's then you see the wrinkles and daubs of paint and wigs;
They look as much like princesses as I look like my pigs.

"It seems like city people drift away from Nater's ways
And lean lots more to humbugs now than in the good old days;
Maybe the gals we used to know was simple gals and dull,
But none of them gals needed paint to make 'em beautiful.
And all the gals I used to know and don't see any more
Was jest as pritty mornings as they was the night before."
